elcome to another edition of Sentinel!

Thank you, thank you, thank you to all of our churches and individual donors who made our Christmas special offering so wonderful this year. The Methodist Family Health Foundation's theme of "Embrace our Tradition of Christmas and Connect to a Child" was a huge success due to your tireless efforts. Many needs for children and families in our care were met through your selfless giving.

In this issue of the Sentinel, you will meet D.J. Thomas, one of our students at the Day Treatment School. You'll learn about how Methodist Family Health has helped him make great strides in managing his emotions and getting along in school and at home.

You will also read about some of the many great events we've been a part of this past quarter. Our most recent event lit up the faces of the children in our continuum as they were special guests of the Maumelle Fraternal Order of Police at a benefit basketball game between the FOP and the Arkansas Razorback alumni team. The children were able to meet and have their photographs taken with many of the former college and professional athletes.

Again, thank you for your support and compassion in helping us rebuild the lives of children and families each year.

Sincerely,

Andy Altom
President and CEO

Day Treatment Success

Watching D.J. Thomas happily and politely greet visitors at the Therapeutic Day Treatment School, one would never imagine the 10-year-old's first introduction to the school.

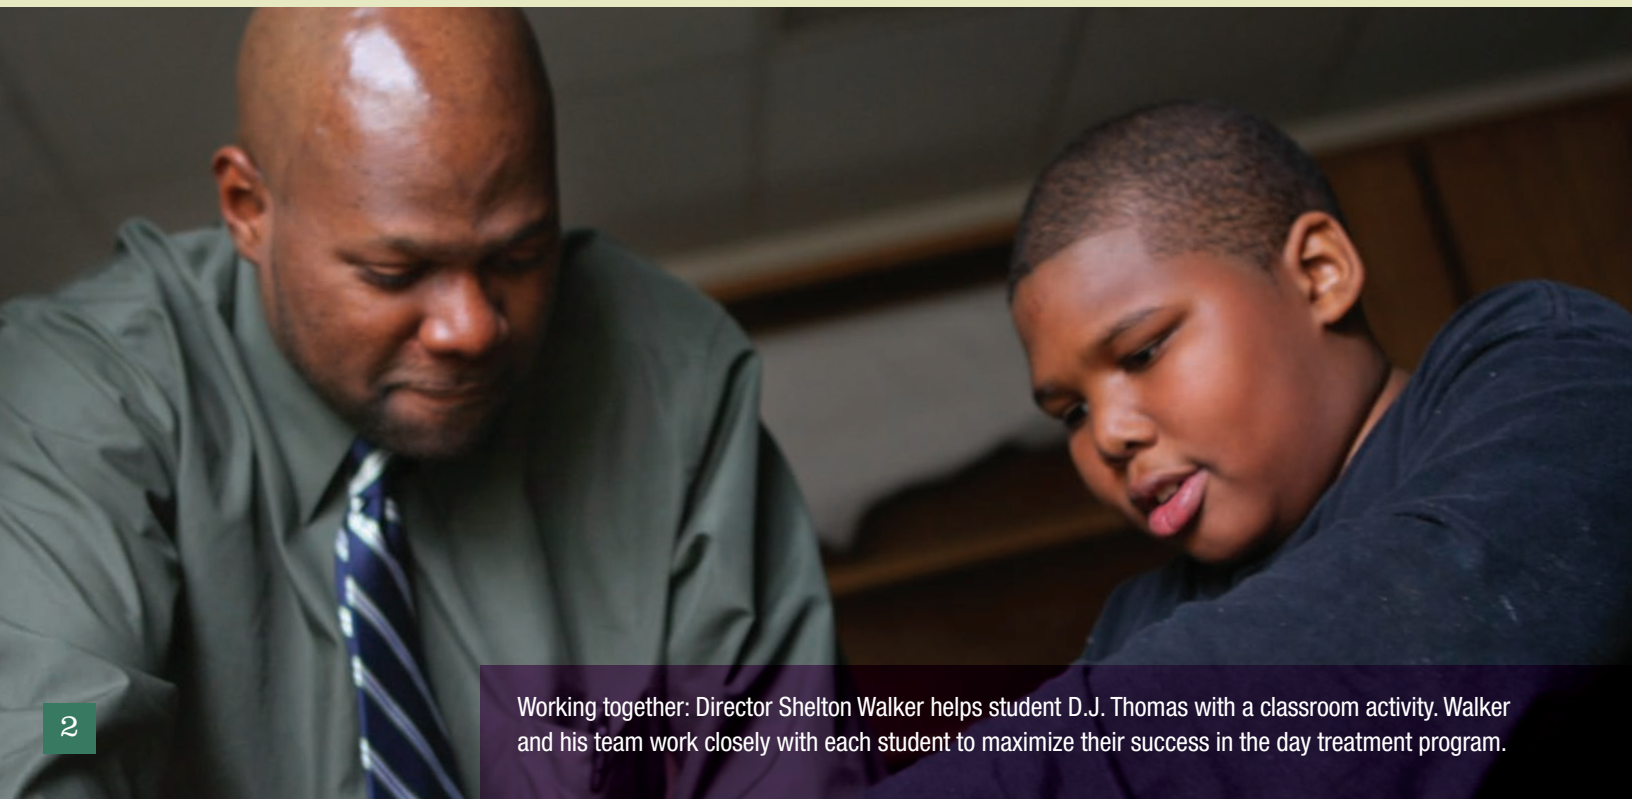

When D.J.'s mom dropped him off at the school's front door in 2003, he was battling intense impulse control issues. So much so, that when D.J. would become frustrated, he would throw his head into any object he could find – concrete floors, walls and chairs. The school's staff was often charged with the task of getting a helmet on D.J. to protect his head.

“Those were intense days,” said school director Shelton Walker. “It was difficult for everyone involved – D.J., his mom, the staff. Since then, D.J. has learned how to manage his impulses and has stopped physically hurting himself.”

With the help of teachers, therapists, and behavioral instructors at the school, D.J. finally started to control his anger issues last year, Walker said. “Now, he better understands his emotions and takes a minute to get control before moving on.”

D.J. is just one of 60 students treated at the Therapeutic Day Treatment School at Methodist Family Health. Students with behavioral, emotional and learning problems receive structured, intensive services that the public schools can't provide. The school is a welcomed option for many families with youth who don't need more intensive services such as residential treatment.

The students spend the day at the school going to class and following the Arkansas Frameworks for academic skills, while participating in group and individual therapy sessions with the school's six therapists. Students have a range of behavioral issues, including conduct disorder, ADHD and autism. These behaviors are further addressed through Behavioral Treatment Plans done by the behavioral instructors to aid in teaching the youth more appropriate ways to cope with their problems. Walker says that 70 percent of the students in the program have been in trouble with the public schools for truancy and violating the rules of their home school.

Working together: Director Shelton Walker helps student D.J. Thomas with a classroom activity. Walker and his team work closely with each student to maximize their success in the day treatment program.

Making the Transition

Along with the day-to-day therapy sessions, students participate in family therapy sessions once to twice a month. Most children stay in the day treatment program for a year, with some staying up to two years. Because of his condition, D.J. has been in the program for five years.

“D.J. will stay with us for as long as he needs to be,” Walker said. “We don’t want to set him up for failure in the public school system if he isn’t ready.”

Walker says his staff works very closely with the public schools to help transition children from the day treatment program to a traditional school setting. Once it’s time to transition a student, a Methodist Family Health staff member shadows the child at the new school for a period of time and assists teachers and others on how best to work with the student.

“The public school teachers appreciate us working with them and helping them learn the best ways to handle particular students,” he said.

Helping Students in a Non-Traditional Setting

The Therapeutic Day Treatment School of the Methodist Children’s Home provides services for students ages 5-18 (K-12) with behavioral, emotional and learning problems. Located on the Camp Aldersgate campus in Little Rock, the program serves the needs of 60 youth who need more structured, intensive services than public schools provide, yet don’t need residential placement.

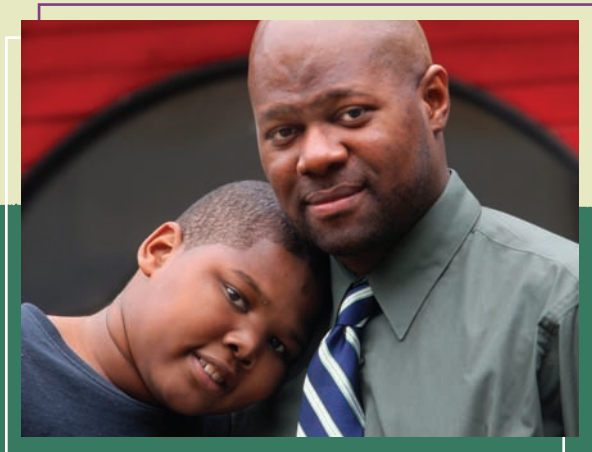

The school provides a structured combination of education and therapy sessions. Students’ educational goals follow the Arkansas Frameworks for academic skill acquisition, and credit is given for their educational time. The program is a designated non-traditional educational site by the Arkansas Department of Education.

Favorite Times

When asked what he enjoys most about the day treatment program, D.J. says he enjoys the team activities, such as playing football, tag and kickball outside. “We learn sportsmanship and how to get along together,” he said.

D.J. says throughout his time in the program, he has learned how to better control his anger, which has led to more pleasant times at home with his mom.

Walker said it’s most fulfilling for him to watch students like D.J. transform into polite, happy youth. “I’m most satisfied when we have guests in the building and our students greet them at the front door and take them on a tour of the facility. They are very proud and know that this is their time to shine, and that makes us all feel good.”

A multi-disciplinary team of educators, therapists, behavioral instructors and psychiatrists work with students to address their educational, behavioral, emotional and social needs. The team meets at least once weekly to evaluate a student’s progress and needs.

Referrals to the day treatment program come from a student’s home school district, based on recommendations from the district, mental health agencies and families.

Donor Spotlight

Judith and Charles Long

Jonesboro, Arkansas

All in the Family: Judith Long says her parents, Mitchell and Gladys Sanford, are the inspiration for the Long's charitable giving.

For Judith and Charles Long of Jonesboro, Arkansas, the United Methodist Children's Home (UMCH) in Little Rock has a rich history in their family. In addition to carrying on a tradition of Methodism, Judith's mother and father carried on a tradition of helping children.

Judith's father, Mitchell Sanford, began his first pastorate in Gem, Kansas, before coming back to northeast Arkansas to complete the remainder of his ministries. One notable exception was when Judith's father accepted a home mission assignment to Houma, Louisiana, as pastor of McDonnell Methodist Center, a boarding school for children first through twelfth grade whose parents were unable to care for them.

Back in Arkansas, in their early retirement, Mitchell and Gladys continued their efforts in caring for children - Mitchell volunteered as an art teacher at the Jonesboro Alternative School, and Gladys shared her piano skills at local church services. They also continued to be strong supporters of the UMCH. "Not only had Dad been a pastor to a Methodist Children's Home, but my parents were good friends with Brother Bob Orr and admired his work with the UMCH in Little Rock. Charles and I agreed that an endowed gift to Methodist Family Health would honor my parents' work and compassion for children."

Judith and Charles both follow in the footsteps of Judith's parents by volunteering in the church and the community and by making a difference in the lives of others. Their gift to Methodist Family Health in memory of Judith's parents is an endowed fund, but more than that it is a new tradition of giving that their daughter Jade will follow as Judith followed her parents. Judith's parents taught her many valuable lessons - one of which was "to never forget God's place" when organizing budgets, and she has not lost sight of that. She and husband Charles have learned the greatest lesson of all - to love their fellow neighbors, friends and, of course, the children.

Champions for Children: Mitchell and Gladys Sanford started a tradition of giving to the Methodist Children's Home after Mitchell served as pastor of McDonnell Methodist Center in Louisiana.

Board Spotlight

Ritter Arnold

Marked Tree, Arkansas

How long have you served on the board?

11 years

Why do you choose to serve on the board?

I have always enjoyed being a part of something that was larger than my own self-interests. The work of Methodist Family Health is so vitally important. Almost anyone would want the opportunity to be involved.

What do you bring to the board?

Basic business skills, which along with those brought by our other very capable board members, are used as a “sounding board” for Methodist Family Health operating staff.

Which MFH service gives you the most pride?

It's hard to pick out any particular service. I think the development of the “continuum” concept, the idea that children in our care can be “transitioned up or down” according to their individual needs without being sent to other providers has been the most dynamic innovation since I have been on the board.

What is your most memorable moment with MFH?

Being a part of the search committee which selected Andy Altom to lead Methodist Family Health. MFH was in very capable hands of Reverend Robert Regnier for many years. I feel very good about the future of MFH under Andy's leadership.

What is your hope for the children?

It's a tough world out there for many children. For whatever reason, not all acquire the skill sets they need to cope. I hope MFH will always be there to provide the second and third chances many young Arkansans will need to become successful adults.

What's Happening Around Methodist?

We've been busy this past season at Methodist Family Health. Below is just a sample of what the children and families in our continuum have participated in since our last issue.

Day Treatment 1st Annual Thanksgiving Feast

Day Treatment hosted its first annual Thanksgiving Feast for students, family members and representatives of the Little Rock and North Little Rock School Districts. A delicious turkey dinner with all the trimmings was catered by J&F Food Service. Special thanks to Home Depot, Burger King, Target, K-Mart and Michael's for their support of the Day Treatment programs.

Trinity UMC, Little Rock Hosts Luncheon for CARES

Trinity UMC hosted a holiday luncheon for the CARES mothers and children. Cookie decorating, caroling and a surprise visit by Santa made the day perfect for all!

MFH Children Attend Arkansas Symphony's Yuletide Spectacular

The Arkansas Symphony Guild and the Arkansas Symphony Orchestra treated children from all MFH programs to a Deck the Halls pre-concert party and the symphony's Yuletide Spectacular concert. More than 150 youth, CARES mothers and staff were able to attend this fabulous event!

MBH Holds Annual Christmas Program

The children at Methodist Behavioral Hospital presented their Christmas program, "The Night Before Christmas", to family members and MFH staff. Behavioral Instructor Kencia Stanley led the choir, and the Recreational Therapy Department, consisting of Carolee Cook, Micah DiPippa, Shaun Bennett and Shari Willding, created the colorful backdrop and programs.

Happy Holidays: Santa paid a visit to CARES mothers and children during a special Christmas luncheon.

Arkansas CARES Celebrates One-Year Anniversary

The Arkansas CARES program celebrated its first birthday under the management of Methodist Family Health in January with a reception in the chapel of the outpatient clinic. CAREfully Catered, a program that supports Arkansas CARES clients, catered the event. Several MFH board members attended as well as former CARES board members. A great time was had by all!

Cindy Burns, Pulaski Heights Methodist Church, and Leo Hauser

Chris Gibson, St. Bernard's, Jonesboro, and Dr. Rita Galloway, CARES administrator

CARES Staff members therapist Chantal Karns, consultant Rhonda Simpson and therapist Elizabeth Petz

Rev. Jack Jackson, MFH Board Member, Jonesboro, and Elizabeth Sadler, director of education

Meeting Arkansas' Sports Legends

During February, youth from the UMCH Residential Treatment Center and Methodist Behavioral Hospital were special guests of the Maumelle Fraternal Order of Police at a benefit basketball game between the FOP and the Arkansas Razorback Alumni team. During the event, the youth were thrilled to meet Clint Stoernor, former quarterback of the Dallas Cowboys and Miami Dolphins; Anthony Lucas, a fourth-round draft pick by the Green Bay Packers; and Scotty Thurman, member of the 1994 National Championship team.

AUGUST 1, 2008
LITTLE ROCK • NORTH LITTLE ROCK

More information is available from all United Methodist pastors and youth directors or from Maggie Beeler at mbeeler@methodistfamily.org.

What is the Big Dam Bridge?

Located across Murray Lock and Dam in Little Rock, the Big Dam Bridge is the newest bridge to span the Arkansas River. It is open to pedestrian and bicycle traffic only, and at 3,463 linear feet in length (3/4 of a mile), the bridge is the longest pedestrian-only bridge built for that purpose in North America.

What is the Big Dam Bridge Walk for Children and Families?

Simply stated, it's a new tradition for youth designed to help children and families in need. By giving of their time and energy and by becoming involved in this outreach of Methodist Family Health, youth groups and individuals will be helping to rebuild the lives of children and families who have suffered from abandonment, neglect or physical, emotional and/or sexual abuse. The donations collected will go directly toward providing assistance to the children and families in the care of Methodist Family Health all across Arkansas.

Sanctioned by the Arkansas Conference Council on Youth Ministry, the walk will be held preceding the statewide youth Wild River Country Lock-in on August 1. Food and entertainment will be provided for the walkers.
