elcome to another issue of Children's Sentinel! This issue features the Methodist Behavioral Hospital, a ministry of which far too few Arkansas Methodists are aware. We hope you enjoy learning more about this wonderful outreach of the Methodist Family Health Continuum of Care.

Those of us who were there to greet our first patient at Methodist Behavioral Hospital on September 13, 2001, still laugh about how we all swarmed on the youngster in anticipation of helping him. Needless to say, the boy was somewhat dismayed, but other kids soon arrived, and we quickly settled into a routine and began meeting our ultimate objective: helping as many kids as possible fix their emotional and behavioral problems.

That objective has remained a constant for these five years as hundreds of boys and girls have come through the acute and sub-acute care programs of the hospital. The Methodist Behavioral Hospital was a much-needed expansion of the programs offered by the United Methodist Children's Home and is now an integral part of our ministry to children and families.

As we celebrate this fifth anniversary of the Methodist Behavioral Hospital, we invite you to learn more about this wonderful dimension of our programs. Elsewhere in this magazine you can find information about our providing a speaker for your church or civic group. Better still, we will arrange for you and/or your group to visit our facilities for an up-close look. We want you to know more about us, and I hope you find this issue both informative and interesting.

Sincerely,

Andy Altom

Very Special d of Hospital

Methodist Family Health filled a pressing need with what has become one of the premier youth behavioral hospitals in the country

“Giving tours of a psychiatric hospital shows a lot about our confidence in the way we do things,” muses Dr. Jennifer Lang, administrator of the Methodist Behavioral Hospital in Maumelle. “Our kids are happy.” Eschewing the punitive approach – punishing patients for bad behavior – for a model that emphasizes motivation and comprehensive, multi-step care, the Behavioral Hospital is a paragon in its field. As one walks its bright, clean hallways, through wings and into classrooms, Lang’s words echo through the faces of patients, who smile and greet visitors with a handshake. This is as far as one gets from the grim psychiatric hospitals of popular conception; in fact, if not for the nurses’ stations throughout, one could easily forget he was walking through a hospital at all.

The genesis and ultimate success of the Behavioral Hospital can be traced directly to the United Methodist Children’s Home (UMCH). For more than a hundred years, the non-profit corporation has cared for troubled and despondent children and teens within its always-improving system of residential care. Yet, in 2001, one major problem still plagued UMCH leaders: “We had to send kids who had psychiatric episodes to hospitals to be stabilized, and oftentimes we wouldn’t get them back in our program,” explains Andy Altom, CEO of Methodist Family Health (MFH). “We’re talking about disrupting the treatment of kids who have histories of abandonment and neglect who might go on to have 30 placements in three years,” adds Lang.

Altom and others decided that the hospital was the missing link in UMCH’s chain of care, and despite not having an inkling of how to run one (“That made it fun,” Altom says with a twinkle), they began taking steps to make it a reality.

Altom, who at the time was director of residential care for UMCH, learned that the former Charter Hospital, a 60-bed psychiatric hospital in Maumelle, had been vacant and on the market for two years. And as it happened, Altom was pursuing his MBA at UALR and was more than suited to devise a business plan.

In May 2001, the UMCH board promptly approved his idea, bought the former Charter Hospital and formed United Methodist Behavioral Hospital, Inc., a subsidiary corporation (shortly thereafter, the two companies joined to form Methodist Family Health, a management company).

A fortuitous streak dovetailed nicely with MFH’s fortitude as David Beall, a pharmacist and classmate of Altom’s at UALR, came on board as director of pharmacy and COO, and Jennifer Lang, unprompted by any advertisements for the position, came to UMCH job-hunting and wound up as the Behavioral Hospital’s clinical director.

The group was, however, decidedly unlucky when it came time to renovate and clean the hospital. With a relatively slim operating budget, they were obliged to do much of the work themselves. To make matters worse, the hospital looked like the perfect setting for a horror movie. When it shut down in 1999, former employees seem to have walked out and never looked back. Desks were full of supplies, post-its attached to bulletin boards, 1999 calendars on the wall, and cabinets filled with empty files. And serving as the bane of the team’s existence, unlabeled keys were piled in a trashcan. Days were spent trying and labeling keys.

After a summer of cleaning and renovation, the hospital was officially licensed by the Arkansas Department of Health on September 10, 2001. The first patient was admitted on September 13, 2001, amidst the post-9/11 malaise. Gradually, the boys' and girls' units for the acute (patients who pose an imminent risk to themselves or others due to psychiatric illness and whose length of stay is generally around 10 days) and the sub-acute (patients who exhibit chronic behavior or emotional issues such as running away or prolonged depression and who stay on average 90 days) filled until the last of the four units opened in February 2002. The hospital reached full capacity on July 31, 2002, the last day of the first fiscal year.

Lang says that the hospital's de facto mission is to "take kids who fall through the cracks," which might, in addition to those who already meet the qualifications of the acute and sub-acute units, include "burn victims, kids with cystic fibrosis, autism, hearing impaired" – anyone who other hospitals won't take. She recalls a self-mutilating autistic child, who had been rejected by many area hospitals. "He and his family both just needed a rest. We adjusted his dosage and stabilized him." Earlier this summer, the hospital had four patients who required one-to-one care, where one behavioral instructor works exclusively with one child. "It's not cost-effective at all," Lang explains. "We'll lose money, but it's a level of care we feel obligated to provide."

Two of Methodist Family Health's most impressive distinctions hint at its unique clinical philosophy: it features the only complete Continuum of Care program for children and teens in Arkansas, and its Behavioral Hospital is the only certified Teaching-Family Model hospital in the country.

Continuum of Care is another way of saying that MFH provides care for all degrees of troubled patients – school-based counseling, therapeutic day treatment school, therapeutic foster care, therapeutic group homes, emergency shelter, psychiatric residential treatment, outpatient therapy, and acute and sub-acute psychiatric hospital care. Throughout the continuum, there's constant communication among staff, so patients who move into new levels of care are always greeted and aided by staff familiar with their background. The addition of the hospital completed the continuum.

The Teaching-Family Model is also deeply rooted in MFH. It's a highly progressive therapeutic system based on motivation that begins with praise and empathy and works forward with constructive goals. But what makes it unique is that while caregivers work with patients, a program consultant monitors and suggests changes to the model, ensuring that the therapeutic approach is always dynamic – like the human psyche.

Recreational therapy is another progressive treatment the hospital employs. Patients maintain a garden on the hospital grounds, participate in stage plays and practice art therapy, wherein artistic self-expression helps manage behavior or resolve conflicts. Also within the grounds are several large playgrounds, replete with slides and jungle gyms, an outdoor basketball court and an indoor court inside the gymnasium.

The hospital received a validation of sorts for its work in February 2006, when UAMS – long one of the premier teaching hospitals in the country – and its department of psychiatry joined with the hospital to make part of its acute wing a teaching unit for UAMS. While accreditations and accolades are more than welcome, the true reward for MFH comes when it is able to return stable, highly functioning children and teens back into the real world. It's particularly rewarding, say Altom and Lang, to see kids who've spent much of their lives in the continuum – maybe starting in a residential home and coming for treatment at the hospital – graduate into the real world as happy, productive adults.

Providing for the Children

The Mason Memorial Foundation held a special luncheon recently in Springdale to help gather support for the different projects that are funded by the organization. The foundation's founder, Debbie Pianalto, attended the event, along with members of the foundation staff; representatives from a North Carolina children's home that is supported by the foundation; prospective supporters; and staff of Methodist Family Health-Residential Services in Northwest Arkansas. Representing Methodist Family Health were Paul and Avis Frazier, Chester and T.J. Vaughn and Sheryl Shuster. Boys' Home Teaching-Parent Paul Frazier served as the speaker of the event.

Methodist Counseling Clinic Ribbon-Cutting

The grand opening and ribbon-cutting celebration commemorating the recent expansion of the Methodist Counseling Clinic into south Arkansas and its new offices in Magnolia was a great success. Many MFH employees and supporters were in attendance. Dr. Walter "Bubba" Smith of First United Methodist Church of Magnolia served as host for the event.

A very special thank you to all who have given money for the Children's Bible Fund. Thanks to the generous giving, the Methodist Family Health Foundation was able to get Bibles into each Group Home, the Residential Treatment Center, Methodist Behavioral Hospital and the Emergency Shelter. Bibles can now be given to the children for them to keep as their own.

Bishop Kenneth Hicks presents youth Bibles to Cherie Hill.

Bubble-Blowing Contest at Camp Tanako

Methodist Family Health held its sixth annual summer camp at Camp Tanako in Hot Springs August 3-7. As usual, there was a great turnout – 160 campers and staff attended from all programs within the Continuum of Care. They enjoyed such activities as a fishing derby, canoe and kayak races, arts and crafts, a photo scavenger hunt and our annual carnival. The Purple Doors Praise Band from Pine Bluff provided entertainment one evening, and our Sunday worship centered around David and Goliath and how youngsters might face their own personal giants with God's help. Along with the traditional summer camp activities, the kids also benefited from therapeutic group sessions conducted by MFH mental health professionals.

Donor Spotlight

Kenneth and Margaret Davis

Supporting the Methodist Children's Home for over half a century

Even with five children of their own, Kenneth and Margaret Davis of Hardy, Arkansas, welcomed kids from the United Methodist Children's Home in Little Rock into their home each year at Christmas time. That tradition of inviting other children to help them celebrate the holiday began when their daughter, Alice, hatched the idea. Christmas at the Davises changed forever – the family even welcomed the same two sisters from the Children's Home for many years, and the Davises' four daughters and son loved the extra company during the week of Christmas. As one large family, they decorated the tree and attended church. Mrs. Davis fondly remembers those times, recalling how the two young girls called her mom just as her own children did. Her only son took the two girls under his wing and proudly played the protective brother role for all six "sisters."

Mr. and Mrs. Davis desperately wanted to adopt the two sisters, but the girls' mother refused. In the years to follow, regulations at the Children's Home changed, signaling an end to the Davis family tradition. While Mrs. Davis misses the extra Christmas joy, the fact that so many lives are changed at the Children's Home provides great satisfaction. Mr. Davis grinned and commented, "I think it's great to take these little kids and feed them, educate them and keep them off the streets."

Their investment in children has changed along with the ministry, but one thing remains the same: their care for the children. They stay in touch with staff about current programs and needs of the children and provide ongoing financial support through the Methodist Family Health Foundation.

They both remain very active in the community. Mr. Davis enjoys entertaining others with his guitar, and Mrs. Davis spends time canning tomatoes and apple butter and preparing health kits for Ingathering.

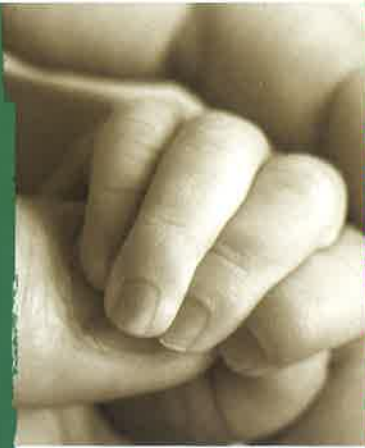

The Davises recently celebrated their 63rd wedding anniversary. For more than 50 years now, they have blessed the United Methodist Children's Home with their love and dedication to rebuilding children's lives. While they no longer take kids home, they are still busy shaping lives by continuing to support this vital ministry for so many in need of help.

How can I help?

Dear Friends,

It was in 1899 that Arkansas Methodists saw the need for a ministry to provide love and care for orphaned children, and in 1902 the first little girl was admitted to the Arkansas Methodist Orphanage. Ninety-nine years later, in 2001, the first youngster was admitted to the Methodist Behavioral Hospital.

Wow! Talk about continuity of a ministry to youth – this is the real thing!

For over a century, from the Arkansas Methodist Orphanage to the Methodist Children's Home of Arkansas to the Methodist Family Health Continuum of Care, the goal of this Arkansas Methodist ministry has remained the same: to provide children with the love and care they need and deserve. But the problems and needs of our society's children continue to increase at an alarming rate, and we must provide for them and help them understand that they are God's children and that God cares for them.

That will require that each of us accept more responsibility for helping these boys and girls in the task of rebuilding their lives. They need us – each of us. We must support them to the maximum extent possible through our prayers, our generous annual gifts, and our bequests. Please call if I can help you with appropriate language for your will or trust or for an outright gift to provide for the children in perpetuity.

Children are the greatest resource for our future. Please join me today in helping to rebuild more young lives – for a better future for all of us.

Sincerely,

William R. Patterson
Vice President for Advancement
